

Stimulus discrimination

When we haven't processed an event we can experience thoughts, feelings and anxiety from it being stuck in the brains emotional processing parts. So a sensation can feel relevant to now but actually be an unprocessed emotional memory.

Situation / trigger	The event it felt similar to Feelings when I remembered it (emotions, physical sensations, anxiety, etc).
Actual similarities between situations	Actual differences between situations
Conclusion	